One-Hour Special Features Muppet Creator Jim Henson

HENSON'S PLACE, a one-hour documentary special on Jim Henson, creator of the Muppets, will air on Wednesday, July 25 at 9 p.m. on WITF-TV33.

Jim Henson, who died of pneumonia on May 16, 1990, brought to children around the globe with his characters Big Bird, Kermit the Frog, Oscar, Ernie, Miss Piggy, and the Cookie Monster.

HENSON'S PLACE, produced in 1986, looks at the emergence of the shy and retiring Henson, not only as a master puppeteer, but also a brilliant conceptualist and creator of worlds within worlds.

The special traces his career from the '50s when Henson, then a college student, created Kermit, to SESAME STREET and THE MUPPET SHOW, and later the Muppet movies and FRAGGLE ROCK. The special then looks at his feature films, "Dark Crystal," and "Labyrinth."

Henson and the Muppets' first nationally distributed feature-length television appearance was in 1966, in "The Muppets on Puppets," a 30-minute program in a WITF-produced series called ADVENTURES IN THE ARTS.

Filmed in London, New York and Toronto, and narrated by British journalist Joan Thirkettle, the program follows Henson's emergency as an unassuming and fun-loving man as well as a brilliant conceptualist and creative genius.

Deb's Country Corner

Hello Country Folks,

Talk about the "Dog Days of Summer"-boy, has it been hot lately. Hope you've been keeping cool in your favorite way, even though it seems impossible sometimes. I heard they're selling industrial strength Right Guard in some of the stores.

I've been making iced tea by the gallons. My family sort of got tired of the regular tea, so I tried a few different recipes the past week. My son and I made a trip down to the woods and gathered a bunch of wild mint. We added quite a few sprigs of that to the tea, and it came out really good.

Then I remembered that I've got a good supply of sassafras trees across the road, so I went on a foraging hunt. Found several young trees, so I liberated one. Cleaned the dirt and debris off, and skinned off a good portion of the bark. Tossed some of the bark in with a gallon of cold water, and set it in the sun for a few hours. Boy, is that refreshing!

I remember Grandma always used to use sassafras tea as a spring tonic, but it works pretty well as a thirst quencher, too.

Another refreshing drink is the old standby, lemonade. There are lots of commercial mixes on the market, but if you really want something to cut your thirst, go back to the old method of using fresh lemons. Or even making it from bottled lemon juice. Yes, its more trouble, and time consuming, but your taste buds will thank you for it.

Don't care for lemonade? Try limes. Of course, you can go all the way and mix the two. Either way, Grandma was right when she realized that real fruit juice is the answer to quenching your thirst.

Recipe for the week is for something to go with those light summer suppers. Goes really easy if you've got a food processor or a blender. Use some of that fresh cabbage that's available now.

Cole Slaw
2 cups shredded cabbage
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup low cal mayonnaise
3 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup vinegar
1 tablespoons celery seed
2 carrots, skinned
1 green pepper (optional)

Cut the cabbage into manageable chunks. If you have a food processor, grate it in there. If not, run through your blender with a cup of water added. Be sure to drain well after chopping. Or, if all else fails, grate on a hand grater. Sprinkle with the salt, and drain off excess liquid. Process the carrots and green pepper the same way. Mix mayonnaise, sugar, vinegar, and celery seed, and pour over the cabbage. Chill.

Household Hint for the Week.

Two more uses for buttons-Keep the drawstring in your sweat pants from disappearing in the waistband casing. Sew a button at each end of the string. And-to keep small piercing earrings together in your jewelry box, fasten them through the holes of a button.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK. Faults are somewhat like the headlights on a car; those of the other guy are always more glaring than our own.

If you have any helpful hints, please share them with us at the Dillsburg Banner, 31 S. Baltimore Street, Dillsburg, Pa. 17019.

Bye for this week.
